WRITING

Plot: Problem/Solution

Clean Up Fix Up

Writer's Tip

- The main conflict in a story is called the problem.
- The way the problem is solved is called the solution.

Gracie looked at the playground. Trash and food littered the ground. The equipment was chipped and dirty. She wanted to clean up the playground for the other children in her apartment building. Soon it would be spring, and they would want to play outdoors.

Gracie knew she could not fix up the playground alone. Then she had a terrific idea. She would ask the people who lived in her building to help out! Surely they would want to improve the playground, too.

First, Gracie put signs in the lobby inviting people to a playground "Clean Up and Fix Up" day. Then she began knocking on doors. By the end of the day, she had a long list of volunteers. Gracie knew that soon the playground would be in great shape.
